IT now appears that it is Egyp-If now appears that it is ngyp-than intransigence which is preventing a general exchange of prisoners between Israel and the arab states in the wake of the capture of the five Syrian officers last week. Syria, it seems is ready to free the three Israeli pilots it holds prisoner in return for the brigadier-general and four colonels taken last week, and the 40 lower-ranking officers, and men captured at various times since the June 1967 War.

It is a measure of the Syrians' hamanitarian concern for their own people that so long as only privates and sergeants lan-guished in Israeli jails Damascus was deaf to all offers of an exchange.

Now, however, that several big fish" have been netted "big there is reason to hope that an overall deal will become possible. The Egyptians still maintain in their public statements that they will hold the ten Israeli personnel — pilots, soldiers, and civilian army employees, many of whom were wounded when captured — rather than exchange them for the 68 of their own men in Israeli captivity. But if the Syrians are sufficiently dis-comfited by the capture of their officers, it is reasonable to hope that their discomfiture will eventually affect the Egyptians too. Israel's position has been clearly and succinctly stated: there will either be a full exchange, or no exchange at all. As Foreign Minister Abba Eban has said, Israel will not give priority to the Syrian officers over her own captured servicemen.

Syria's contention that her officers were kidnapped and not taken prisoner during a mi-litary action, and are therefore not subject to the international rules applying to prisoners of war and their exchange, is both fallacious and hypocritical. When an army reacts to aggression by secting out the aggressors in their strongholds across the frontier and apprehending them then this is an act of war. That the Syrian officers were tonring Fatshland as part of a military team planning hostile operations against Israel was amply proved by the maps and documents found in their possession.

Renewed tension feared Beirut won't expel terrorists

By ANAN SAFADI Jerusalem Post Arab Affair Reporter

Renewed tension on the Lebanese border seemed inevitable yesterday following an indication by Lebanese President Suleiman Franjieh that his administration will not press for the withdrawal of the terrorist organizations from southern Lebanon.

A terrorist withdrawal has been urged by various circles in the Le-banon, especially by right-wing circles voicing apprehension over the deteriorating situation in the south in the aftermath of Israeli reprisel raids. These circles further emphasized their concern at Israel's warning that it would no longer remain content with retaliation for terrorist attacks, but would strike out at any remaining terrorist concentrations Speaking at an extraordinary Cabinet session in Beirut, President Franjieh said that his government would maintain its policy of co-existence with the terrorists. He urged his countrymen to "remain alert for new Israeli attacks."

The Lebanese President's remarks came as Beirut newspapers flashed reports of a new agreemnt reached on Tuesday night between the Lebanese government and the terrorist movement. The contents of but most papers agreed that the accord included an agreement by Lebanon. In addition, the terrorists were generally thought have given their consent to a withdrawal from populated areas, though not from

Soviet Jews make plea to Socialist meet

By DON PATTIR Jerusalem Post Special Correspo VIENNA. - The plight of both Soviet and Syrian Jews was brought up yesterday before the Congress of the Socialist International, in a dramatic telephone appeal from Mos-cow and an address by Israeli Aha-ron Yadlin of the Labour Party.

Two Muscovites, Victor Polsky and Nathan Feingold telephoned yesterday morning from Moscow to the Congress asking it to adopt a resolu-tion appealing to all Communist and workers' parties to assist in free emigration of Jews from the Soviet Union and other countries.

Mr. Yadlin appealed to the Inter-national Socialist movement to demand that Syria release its imprisoned Jews, cease its oppression of the small Jewish community there and let the Jews leave Syria.

The two Soviet Jews pointed out that "many of the active participants at the International are well known to the world public and their activities for the sake of social and racial justice have won wide acclaim throughout the world. The trust enjoyed by the Socialist International permits us to apply to the congress with a request for its help and support." Soviet Jews, they said, consider the State of Israel as their national and historical homeland. This country is close to us spiritually; our relative and our close friends live in it. It is our for the sake of keeping the guns close friends live in it. It is our silent and so that it might serve homeland and we want to be active citizens of it. We insist upon our freedom to leave the U.S.S.R. for cational or other qualifications. They concluded: "We are certain that those for whom democratic ideals are truly dear will not refuse to give their cooperation and will not deny us their help and assistance." They said they were joined a in their appeal by 38 other Jews, and listed their names.

Mr. Yadlin, who was greeted upo taking the podium by Golda Meir serving as the congress chairman yesterday, reminded the Socialist International that despite all the previously adopted resolutions Syrian Jews are still imprisoned and oppressed and their human rights are violated.

Discrimination against the 5,000 remaining Jews is organized by a supreme committee in collaboration with the military intelligence, similar to the committee in Nazi Germany for the final solution of the Jewish problem. No Jew is allowed to leave the country, including those with foreign nationality. All Syrian Jews must carry special identity cards in which the word Jew is marked in red ink. They live in ghettos, and are under night curfew.

The Jewish community, as a result of the oppression, is under great economic difficulties. Recently ten Jews were arrested and jailed there without trial, and according to Jews In Wellington, it is reported that who managed to leave Syria, they ment's sake only, the contention that they were kidnapped, Syria. is the last country which can seriously demand the early re-lease of kidnap victims. Watchman Shmuel Rosenwasser of Metnila was without any question kidnapped — not taken by any legitimate act of war — and yet the terrorists held him for over a year in Syria, with the consent of the Syrian authorities. Nor was the U.N. able to act to get him released.

The Egyptian front, on the other hand, has been quiet for almost two years. International Law requires an exchange of prisoners upon the cessation of hostilities, although the parties concerned can agree to an exchange even before a cessation. Israel's offer, which is numerically so disadvantageous to itself, stands open now as it has stood for years. Both Egypt and Syria would do well to take advantage of it rather than vainly trust in the Security Council to restore the captured officers by means of arbitrary orders.

Gandhi and Bhutto may vield as talks progress

THE meeting between President Jarring

THE meeting between President. T Bhutto and Prime Minister In. dira Granchi which started in the mountain resort of Simla yesterday may declayyely shape the future of the Indian subcontinent. On it hinges the question whether the three countries in the subconfi-nent — India, Pakistan and Bangla-desh — can learn to five as Friendly neighbours with common sconomic and political goals. Or will far, Bhut. to give Pakistan a westward slant that will make H a part of Islamic Wast Asia, while India and Bangla-desh seek a Southeast Asian idendesh seek a Southeast Asian iden-

At the moment, judging from the public attitudes of both leaders, the meeting at Simla looks like a con-frontation of irreconcilables. They have adopted hard, conflicting lines which are bound to stalemate the talks if persisted in, but this may be only part of a psychological build-up which may yield to more flexible positions when the positions when the talks actually begin. Simila, nestling among the lower Simla has a severe water shortage and people queue on the roadside with buckets for the tankers which bring them water once a day. The town is also crowded with fugitives from the heat of the plains. In the days before independence, Simia was the scene of many meetings between the British viceroys and Indian politicians which ended with little gain on either side.

THE JEBUSALEM POST

Accordingly, he might ask her to put off discussing Kashmir to a later summit meeting on the ground that he needs time to carry public sentiment in Pakistan with him before he can agree to a compromise. He might offer instead to resume trade with India, cut off since September 1965, and diplomatic relations, which President Yahya Khan snapped last December.

Time to prepare Some Indian observers here say Mrs. Gandhi will not soften her demand that all outstanding issues be settled over the table at Simla. But another observer with an in-side view, Kuldip Nayar, the "States-man's" Delhi editor, says that though New Delhi would like a final settlement on Kashmir at the talks this subject "will not be al-

HAIFA. - The annual convention of the Fishermen's Union Council vesterday called on the government to allocate more money for fishing fleet renewal and boat construction grants. The 80 delegates, represent-ing nearly 1,000 trawl and sardine fishers in the Mediterranean Red Sea and Lake Kinneret, were told that no new boats had been built for the past two years, because costs had doubled. The 18 trawlers and several dozen sardine boats were thus getting old with no chance for renewal.

The council was told that although some 20 per cent of the fishermen had dropped out of the trade during the past two years, catches had gone up by 22 per cent in 1971, and continued at the same high rate during the first half of this year. During 1971, a total of 6,500 tons had been landed, representing a fifth of total annual consumption. The trade's two main problems are the high cost of new boats and a shortage of manpower.

56 U.S. nurses here for seminar

Jerusalem Post Reporter TEL AVIV. -- Fifty-six members of the American National Nursing League are taking part in a seminar on nursing in Israel which opened Tuesday at Tel Aviv University. Dr. Riva Bergman, head of Tel Aviv U.'s Nursing Department, said that the purpose of the seminar is to acquaint the American nursing experts with Israel achievements in the field, particularly with some of the "unique solutions" to problems of providing nursing services in outlying areas and in immigrant and non-Jewish localities The seminar will last two weeks. The programme includes lectures by the Defence Forces Chief Surgeon, the National Insurance Institute Director-General, the Tel Aviv U.'s Nursing Department lecturers and researchers, and nurses.

The American National Nursing League, whose activities are financed by public institutions, has 17,000 members. Two members who had planned to participate cancelled their trip to Israel following the massacra at Lod Airport, it was reported.

Dulzin: Room for two peoples in Eretz Yisrael

TEL AVIV. - Jewish Agency Trea. surer Arye Dulzin said here Tuesday that it was time for Israel to declare that within the historic boundaries of Bretz Yisrael there was room for two peoples and two states: An Arab one to the east of the Ministry announced Tuesday. Funds for the new appointments the Jordan River with its capital at Amman and a Jewish one to the west with its capital at Jerusalem. He said the Jordan formed the natural boundary between the two. Mr. Dulzin, one of the leaders of the Liberal Party, spoke at a Wizo luncheon marking the end of the organization's fund-raising season He said that the world was in a period of population transfer and that any Arab who did not wish Israeli citizenship would be able to find his own Palestinian Arab state "not far away - 30 to 40 kilo-metres to the east."

He described fears of a demographic problem as groundless, saying that anyone who did not believe in an immigration of five to seven million more Jews here before the end of the century did not believe in Israel's future.

POOR PROGRAMMING OF CLASSICAL MUSIC To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post

Sir, - There is hardly a programme of recorded classical music presented on Israel Radio without at least one badly scratched record. Sometimes the nuisance continues for a whole minute until an apologetic announcer changes the record for something else; at other times, Mapan's so-called "historic leader. on the Aguda bill on Sunday and ship," Knesset Members Meir Ya'art the Knesset Presidium has scheduled and Xa'acov Hazan, who hold the party's top posts, will seek an inter-view with Mrs. Meir as soon as possible after she returns to tell her that Mapam will not stay in the Government if she expels the II.P. for breaking the coalition agreement on the religious status quo.

"Yearing Circle" Mapam M.K. Dov to this, in view of the LL.P. civil Zakin told Tae Post: "We would be marriage bill, Zakin tall Tas Post: We would be Mrs. Meir expel them without doing anything, and we would be double-crossing them again, if we reversed our decision in the Political Committee of the party, to support Mr. Gideon Hausner's private member's bill." · · · · · · · · · inconsistent about coalition discip-line on a far more vital public issue before. She personally had offered Gahal leaders the privilege while still staying in the National Unity Coalition. (Gahal turned down the offer.)

Messra. Ya'ari and Hazan, who fought a rearguard action in the Mapam Secretariat over the civil marriage bill, have decided not to fight the party majority favouring the bill a second time. They prefer a showdown with Mrs. Meir, rather than a showdown with their party rebels, who are cornering them on an issue of moral principle, in Mapam's ideological terms. Hence al-though the Mapam Secretariat voted others: last week to refer the bill's fate to the Political Committee once again, Messrs. Ya'ari and Hazan reportedly partments will not even take the trouble to table a motion against support for .

Accordingly, the N.R.P. has already put out feelers to the Aguda to postpone the debate on its bill. Rabbi Lorincz said yesterday that a postponement would only be considered — if at all - on condition that the N.R.P. would commit fiself to voting with him when the mea-

Rabbi Lorincz knows that then, the N.R.P. will turn up their noses at his bill, so he insists on their prior commitment. Since his bill has no 1.45chance of a majority, whatever hap-pens, he might seek to embarrass The and the N.R.P. more by not postponing front tire as a possible cause of the skid. Rabbi Lorincz has meanwhile split agrees to cut height

By ABRAHAM RABINOVICH Jerusalem Post Reporter

The promoter of the Hyatt House Hotel said yesterday that he would agree to a cut of 14 metres in the 71-metre-high building proposed for Mount Scopus.

Rimon Disraeli told The Jerusalem Post that he had received authorization for the cut on Tuesday night from the Hyatt International headquarters in Chicago.

The panel of experts appointed by the District Planning Commission to advise on the proposal recomsion, has in the past served as Prin- mended last week that a building cipal Examiner in the British Patent no higher than 12 metres - that Office, and during World War II is three or four storeys - be per-rendered outstanding scientific ser- mitted. Mr. Disraell confirmed that the foreign architect brought by the Hyatt chain this week to advise on the proposal was a Moslem. This is probably the first time since the Six Day War that a Moslem architect has been involved in any way in any major project in the city. It was his advice to cut the

Sit-down strike at Bishop's Gaza pupils: Yadlin urges more Egypt exams income tax cuts over village resettlement too hard Jerusalem Post Staff General Titzhak Ben-Aharon's sug-

HAIFA. — More than 100 former residents of the abandoned Arab village of Ikrit, on the Lebanese border, yesterday staged a sit-down strike at the nome of Greek Catholic Archbishop Joseph Raya here, to protest against the refusal of the authorities to let them resettle the village. The Archbishop, who is backing their demand, persuaded the strikers to return to their homes in Rameh village after a message was received that Deputy Premier Yigal Allon would receive the Archbishop and a delegation of the villagers at noon tomorrow.

The Archbishop has also evinced support of the former residents of Bar'am village, in Central Galilee, who were also displaced after the War of Liberation and now want to return.

The director of the local office of the Prime Minister's Adviser on Arab Affairs, Mr. Yoram Katz, told the strikers yesterday that the Government recognized their property rights. Well over half the villagers had accepted compensation, he pointed out, and the Government was ready to compensate the rest as well,

The demand of the former residents of Ikrit and Bar'am to return to their villages were inspired ap-parently, by Defence Minister Moshe Dayan's announcement last month that the security zones along the old "Green Line," established on the strength of the Emergency Regulalocated in such security zones, which to return.

In contrast, most of the girl students questioned by the press said they had not found the questions too difficult.

Some 7,000 high school students are taking their exams in the Strip, in addition to 179 sitting for their matriculation in Beersheba prison and another 160 in the Gaza fail. The students were eager to talk to the press this year, in contrast to previous years in which reporters seeking to visit the schools were greeted with rocks and shouts of
